INCREASE ASKED IN WOMEN VOTES NEXT ELECTIONS

Mrs. Wood Park Urging Women to Take Part in National Affairs.

DUTY OF CITIZEN

Claims Negligence is Fault of Citizenship and that Failure is Costly.

(By the Associated Press)
DES MOINES, Ia., April 11.—A twenty-five percent increase voted in the 1924 elections over that cast in 1920 was the goal urged for the National League of Women Voters by Mrs. Maud Wood Park, president of the league, in an address today before its annual convention here.

"I ask every woman in the league," Mrs. Park said, "to set to work to restore democracy and to rouse the public to an understanding of the simple duty of every qualified voter to the community. The election day is a recurring examination by which our knowledge of efficient citizenship is tested."

Citing figures on the 1920 election showing that of 54,421,832 men and women in the United States eligible to vote, only 26,705,346, or 49 percent, went to the polls, Mrs. Park said:

"Rule by minority is not due to the less responsible citizens alone. It is a common failing and thousands of excellent and well-informed men and women excuse themselves on a slight pretext, or no pretext at all, from registering their good intentions and their knowledge in the only place in which they will count toward good government—the ballot box. The League of Women Voters can do no more important work between now and the next general election than to set a goal of reasonable increase in the percentage of votes cast and make a definite plan for attaining that goal."

To make effective use of their enfranchisement in the work for efficient citizenship, women voters, Mrs. Park said, should observe these three precepts:

First, vote at every election in accordance with the best information available; second, carry out the special responsibilities of women for child welfare and the home and for adequate protection of women in industry, with fair opportunity for all women under the law; and, third, since peace is essential to the progress of civilization, work for the promotion of sane international methods of preventing war."

Women voters were urged by the speaker to study not only pending legislative problems but also the enforcement of laws already enacted.

"Unless the league is willing to make sure that the laws which it has mothered are carried out," Mrs. Park said, "we shall have done harm rather than good in our legislative work, because every neglected statute is one more contribution to a widespread menace in the United States today—the lawlessness of individuals and of mobs."

Discussing the necessity for intelligent study by the electorate of issues involved in the nation's foreign relations, Mrs. Park said:

"The kind of international cooperation needed to prevent war is a fundamental concern of the United States and all other countries, and the members of the League of Women Voters should take great pains to inform themselves upon these important issues in order intelligently to support the methods that seem wisest."

Prefers Work to Idle Life

DAYTON, O., April 11.—(Special)—Obtaining an education by the "sweat of her brow," in preference to enjoying life as a college "butterfly," is the hobby of Miss Elizabeth Dennison, nineteen, daughter of H. S. Dennison, millionaire manufacturer of Framingham, Mass.

For Miss Dennison, who is a co-operative class student at Antioch college, near Yellow Springs, for some six weeks, has been working along side of other girls in the armature winding department of the Duro Pump Company plant in this city.

This work she is doing in order to engage in factory personnel work. By working alongside the other girls at the plants she hopes to learn the state of mind of those who labor and in this manner fit herself for the duties she expects to assume. Eventually she intends to combine what she has learned with the Dennison plan of factory democracy for the mutual benefit of capital and labor.

Exceedingly proud is Miss Dennison of her calloused hands received as a result of the hard work in the winding of armatures.

"This is what the wire did," laughs Miss Dennison when asked as to the difficulty of the work, the while extending her hardened hands and bruised and cut finger nails, which once were always well manicured. "They were pretty sore at first, but became hardened and used to knocks within a week."

All the girls at the plant are Miss Dennison's "pals" and, when referring to the millionaire's daughter call her plain "Miss Dennison" or Elizabeth.

Miss Elizabeth Dennison.

"They are simply wonderful," exclaimed Miss Dennison when referring to the attitude the girls take toward her. "I work hard and don't get 'peevish' and, besides, I sing for the girls at times and they all join in, and together we just have a 'bully' time."

That Miss Dennison derives keen pleasure from her work and that she feels sure she could support herself if forced to do so is indicated by her statement that her work gives her a "feeling of independence."

At present she is working piece work, winding eleven stators a day. Within the next two weeks, or as soon as she returns from the Easter college vacation, allowed under the regulations of the Yellow Springs university, she expects to be promoted to the personnel department of the plant, where her real work is to start.

A lover of the outdoors, Miss Dennison takes keen delight in all manner of sports and is an expert horsewoman.

Quite often, when attending the college in connection with her co-operative studies, she can be seen taking long hikes with other girl students, on which occasions she wears the regulation knickers.

She is popular with the girls at the college, who for more than two months after her entrance at the school some time since, were unaware of the fact that her father was one of the richest men in New England and that she did not have to take part in the daily school class routine.

No fears are entertained for the safety of the party as it was accompanied by capable Indian guides and the cars contained plenty of food. The party was expected here Sunday.

TAMPA, Fla., April 10.—With thirty miles of bad lands ahead of them, the members of the Tamiami trail blazers party are approaching Miami at the rate of one mile a day, according to word received in Fort Myers, Monday night from three Indian runners, who were taken along by the motorists upon their departure for the east coast.

The Indian runners stated that the motorists were building bridges constantly and have in prospect, thirty days' travel.

The motorists left Fort Myers Wednesday in nine cars to make their way to Miami over the Tamiami trail. There are nineteen men and five women in the party.

RICKETS GOES TO TRIAL ON CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

Alleged to Have Slain Bruno Mayer in Fight at Sawmill.

JURY IS DRAWN

Testimony Starts After Long Period in Selection of Jury.

After using the entire morning for the selection of a jury, the state fired the opening gun in the trial of W. J. Rickets, charged with manslaughter in the second degree in connection with an alleged altercation in which Bruno Mayer received wounds that resulted in his death.

Considerable time was taken in the selection of the jury, after questioning from both sides waxed warm through the morning session. The entire jury venire threatened to be exhausted before jury of twelve men could be selected to name the fate of the defendant in probably one of the most sensational cases to come before the present term of district court.

The jury for the Rickets case was obtained at 11:45 Wednesday morning, the trial starting with the statement of the case by County Attorney J. W. Dean.

Dean stated the case to the jury at 1 o'clock, explaining the cause of action and the points held by the state as grounds for prosecution.

Old Scores Settled
Dean, in the statement, pointed out that trouble had been brewing between the two men for some time over the alleged disagreement over some timber property. The state pointed out that the deceased, Bruno Mayer, had claimed that money was due him for timber which had been taken off his land and that the contentions of Mayer in an effort to get the money due him led to the final act in the killing drama.

Dean pointed out in his statement to the jury that the defendant had made a statement before witnesses in the case to the effect that he might have to kill someone to have peace in his neighborhood.

Further matter in the statement brought out that the altercation happened at a sawmill, when Mayer rode into the presence of Rickets.

The statement of the state declares that in the fight that resulted from an argument, sticks and clubs were used by both men freely until a hand-to-hand fight resulted and during this Rickets is alleged to have fired the shot that killed Mayer.

Testimony was being produced by the state during the early afternoon of Wednesday.

(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 11.—A prediction that important developments will result from facts revealed "here and there" by the senate investigating committee of the veterans' bureau was made today by John F. O'Ryan, special counsel for investigating committee on the basis of information gathered by him after a preliminary survey of conditions.

INTEREST INCREASES IN REVIVAL SERVICE HERE

Another banner service rewarded the words of Evangelist Theodore Copeland Tuesday night when he talked on the subject text, "Where Art Thou?"

With religious pertinence, the evangelist scored the backslider and sinner and prompted them for better service and for confession of faith.

The interest in the revival continues to grow as it reaches the near close of its second week. The revival is no longer considered a Methodist effort to arouse religious sentiment but as a city service in church work. Pastors of other churches have been active in the promoting of the interest in the services at the church.

Dr. Copeland will preach tonight on the subject, "Making Room for Jesus." Another large and interested crowd is expected to the services.

Dr. Copeland will deliver a special sermon Sunday afternoon to the women and girls of the city.

(By the Associated Press)

Middleton, according to fellow students, stated that the watchman fired first. Police officials declared that Selph said in his dying statement that he was fired upon when he looked into an abandoned automobile found on the campus at night in violation of a university rule.

Miss Clover Coleman, also a student of the university, who was Middleton's companion in the automobile, testified at the student's examining trial that she was unable to say which of the principals was first to fire.

BOTH HOUSES GO TO ADJOURNMENT

The Disney bill, appropriating $5,000 for a survey to be presented to the next legislature reached a vote in the senate during the afternoon and was returned to the house. By lunch time, the senate had practically cleared its calendar. Like the house, it was marking time to permit the enrolling department to get the last seventy-five measures ready for the signatures of the presiding officers.

Conflicting estimates of the expenditures were expressed in statements issued tonight by various solons. Several members of the body asserted it was up to Governor Walton to do some pruning of the money bills so as to get within the earning power of the state. On the other hand, the record of the session was "viewed with pride."

Solons Express Views
W. E. Disney, independent leader, declared "the extravagance has been greater than any one would have dreamed possible," and hoped that the governor would veto some of the appropriations items.

James C. Nance, house appropriation committee chairman, in a lengthy review of the work of the Ninth session justified the amounts voted by the house and declared "The item of taxes for the state government is so small that the average taxpayer will not be harmed."

Richard Elam announced that he was "not going to stop in the way to get the appropriations cut. I am going to urge all representatives to have their constituents to wire the governor urging him to strike out items of the institutional appropriation bill and reduce the total by several million," he said.

Chairman John H. Carlock of the senate appropriation committee said the total of all appropriations exceeded $33,000,000, which is far larger than the total spent by any former assembly. He urged as a measure for future economy a constitutional amendment to do away with secondary schools now supported by the state.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

LORD SEES ALL: For the eyes of the Lord run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to shew himself strong in behalf of those whose heart is perfect toward him.—2Chronicles 16:9.

STEEL CORPORATION RAISES WAGES

The United States Steel Corporation will increase the wages of approximately 59,000 day laborers in its employ. These men now receive 36 cents an hour. Their wages are to be increased 11 per cent.

The increase probably results from the restriction of immigration. When immigration was free and unrestricted the great steel companies always had an abundant supply of laborers and as the law of supply and demand operates in wages as well as all other things, wages for common labor were held to a low level. Now with immigrant labor no longer flooding the market in such large numbers competition in the labor market is sending prices of wages upwards. The revival of business is also a factor in this wage increase. Only last week the wages of thousands of operatives in cotton mills were increased.

There is a tendency toward price advances in many lines. We are again approaching some of the conditions of 1918 and 1919 and 1920 when inflation brought on so much trouble. Speculators are trying hard to get in their hand again. They would like to see another run-away market. But they are likely to find little encouragement from bankers upon whom they brought heavy losses when the public went on a buyers strike in 1920 and 1921.

There is likely to be some advances in the wages of common labor from good economic causes, which, of course, must be reflected in slightly advanced prices of the commodities which their labor produces, but further than this legitimate advance the public isn't going to stand for much before it quits buying.—Wichita Daily Times.

ALL TOGETHER

Reports from the state capital are that Governor Walton will, in keeping with his record of efficiency and recognition of worthy objects, sign the salary and maintenance bills for the East Central State Teachers College. While many things have come up to prevent Governor Walton from having the same kindly feeling for the Ada institution that he probably has for some of the other institutions, he could not fail to recognize the superior grade of work done at East Central and that it is serving the boys and girls of the state as well as, or better than, any other state educational institution.

Another phase of the problem that is pleasing is the unanimity with which the Ada citizens responded when the report went out that the institution was in danger. Factionalism was forgotten, past differences were forgotten and every one was willing and anxious to do his part.

This is the spirit that builds cities. It is the spirit that has made Ada one of the most desirable places in which to live in the southwest. It is the spirit that will make it larger and better in every way.

The death of Hamilton Fish, former president of the Illinois Central railroad, calls to mind a story in connection with his retirement from that position a number of years ago. According to the reports of that day, the wife of another prominent official of the road being peeved at snubs received from Mrs. Fish in the social whirl of New York, decided to square accounts by removing Fish from the presidency of the road and elect her husband in his place. Whether this was the real cause or not, the next meeting of the directors dropped Fish from his position and elected the other man. This country does not have its dukes and counts, but its "high society" pulls some queer stunts at times.

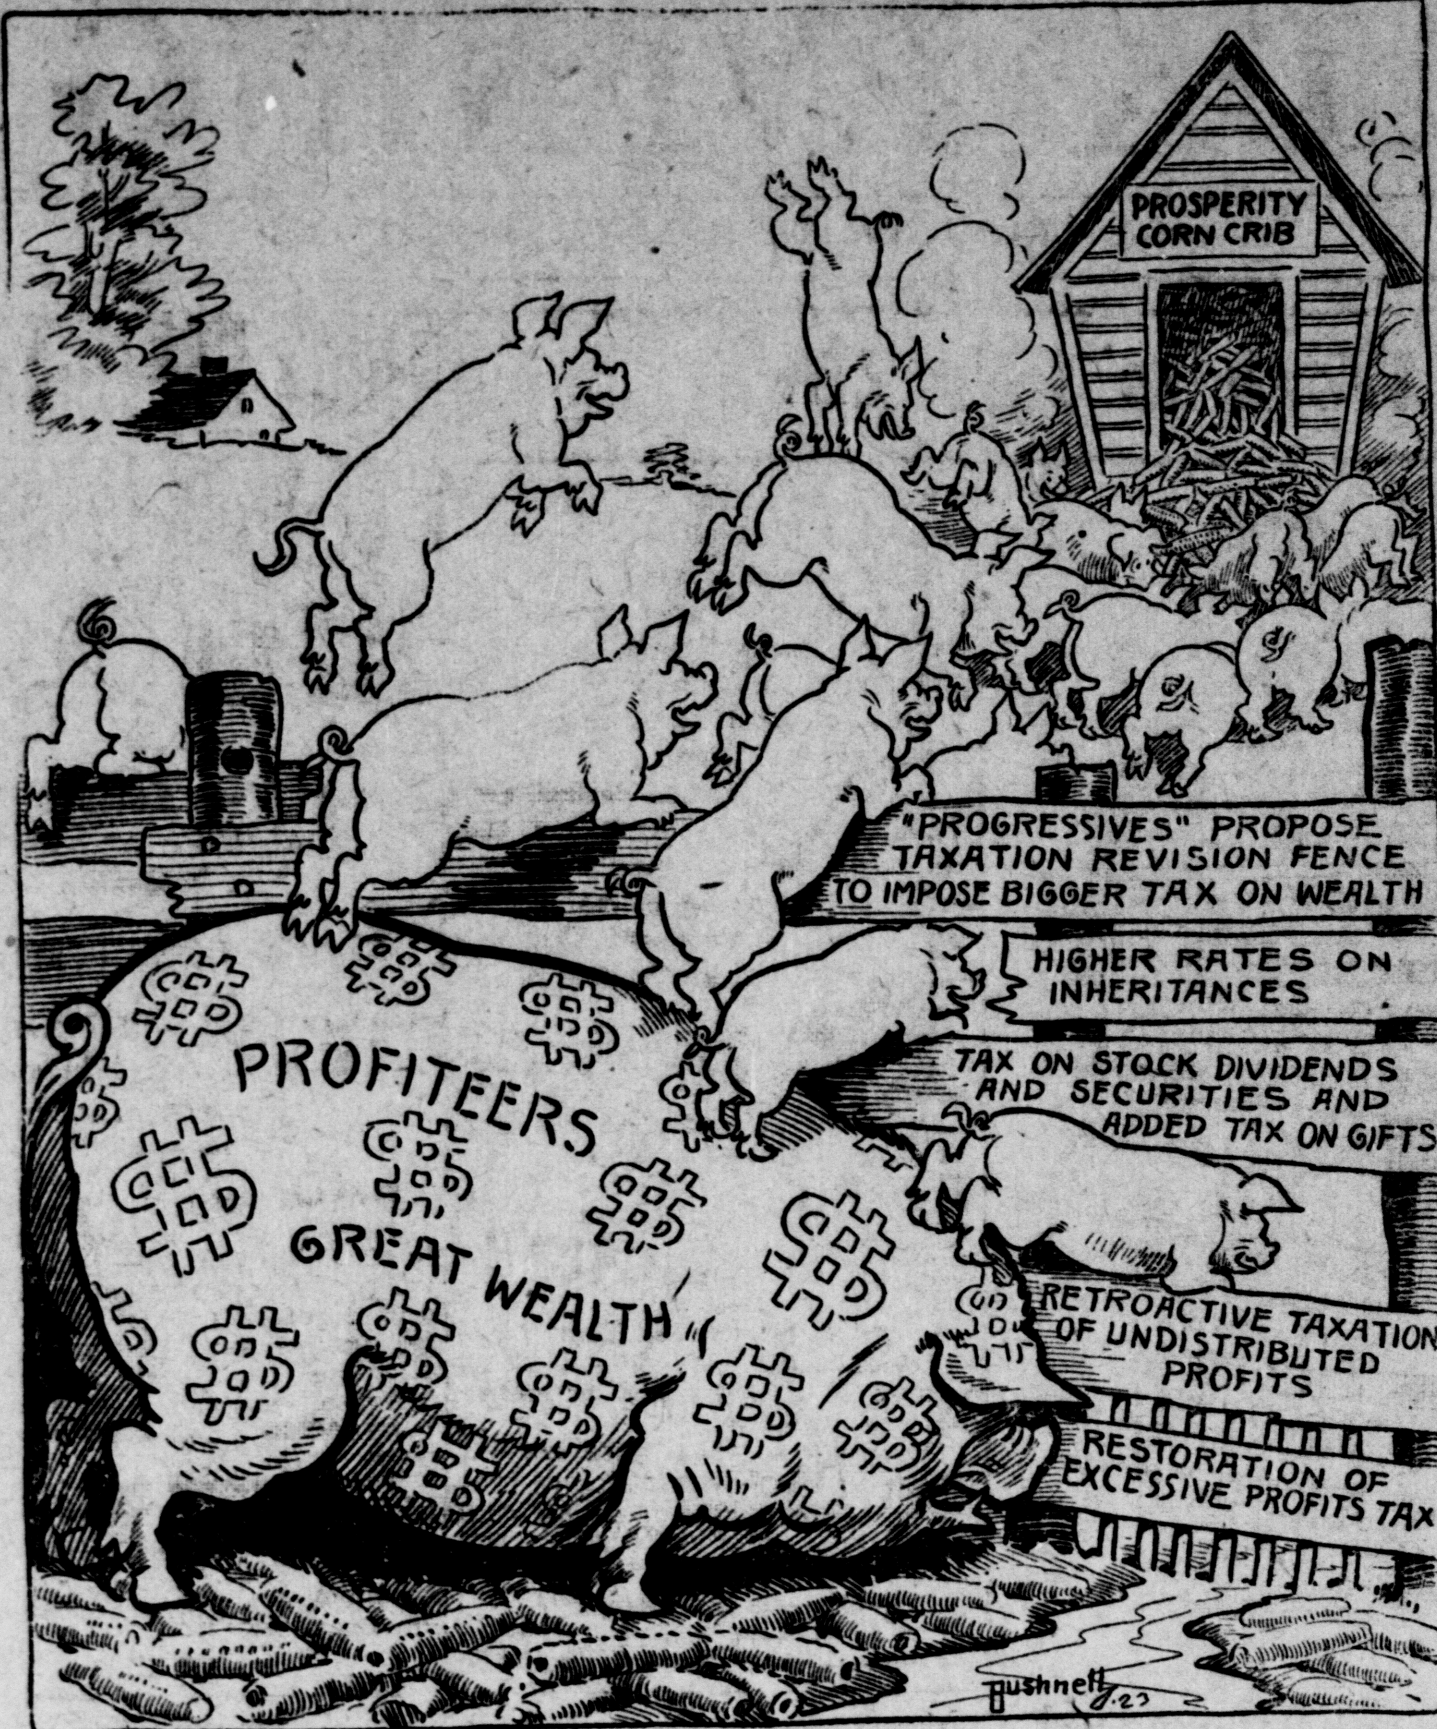

A rube from St. Louis on his first visit to Philadelphia was shown the Liberty Bell. Looking it over, he said, "It's too bad to let a relic like that run down. We've got a blacksmith down home who could fix that crack up so you wouldn't know it ever had been there, and he'd do the job for $5."—Shawnee News.

The reports of the three banks of Ada indicate that money matters are quite a bit improved over a year ago. Total deposits are $2,816,524.94, a tidy sum for this season of the year. Furthermore, there are eight more banks in the county and when their deposits are added to those of the Ada banks it will be seen that the outlook is not at all discouraging.

A well-known proprietary medicine began an advertising campaign in 1915 with an expenditure of $6,000. Last year it spent $1,250,000 and reports having sold 30,000,000 bottles during the seven years. And yet we sometimes hear men express doubts about whether advertising pays.

Secretary McAdoo, recently returned from a visit to Mexico, reports business in that country the best in its history. That is a matter of importance to the United States since this country has much to see to other nations and a market that near home means much to the producers of the United States.

Labor More Productive.
(Star-Telegram)

An increase in the productivity of American labor is noted by one of the writers on the market page of The Star-Telegram. Among other things, he says:

"Industrial concerns of the United States in many instances have increased wages, but the workers of the United States have increased individual efficiency. That is the most encouraging factor in the business situation of the country today.

"Steel plants have been raised to an unprecedented power of production, despite a scarcity of labor, which has sent labor agents scurrying all over the South and throughout the populous cities on recruiting duty, almost entirely because individual production has been raised. The number of feet of lumber produced per man per day in the mills of the country has almost doubled in the last two years.

"The mills of the American Woolen Company are running every spindle and loom for the first time in history and the company evidently is satisfied with its employees, because President Wood has just announced that $500,000 has been set aside to enable the company's workers to buy their own homes.

"Up-to-date methods of shop practice and new equipment is responsible to some extent for the unprecedented output. A glimpse into the factories of the country and at the order books of the machinery companies shows to what extent old methods and old machinery have been junked and replaced with new devices."

There is nothing that increases the wealth of a people like the increased productive power of the people themselves. Indeed, from a strict economic point of view, it is the only way to increase the wealth of all the people. The per capita production of a country is the best indication of its standard of living. That is why the indications of the increased productivity of labor are indications of real progress.

The Getaway. (Ardmoreite)

Some queer angles on crime are revealed by the National Surety Company, large organization that puts up bond for cashiers, treasurers, ticket sellers and others entrusted with money.

The largest bond claim paid by this company last year was $233,333. Whoever got away with that sum was one of the top-notch criminals of 1922.

The smallest bond claim paid by the N. S. C. was five cents. Names are kept secret as to business man who'd go to the bother of enforcing and collecting a claim for a nickel. Probably, though, it's like keeping books—wasting dollars of time to find an error of one cent.

A strange thing about thieves is that they usually play for comparatively small stakes. For instance, the National Surety in one year paid 1528 bond claims under $10,000 each, and only 58 claims above $10,000. You often hear people say, "I wouldn't steal, but if I was going to I'd pull off something big. It doesn't work out that way on the law of averages."

Rather extraordinary is the National Surety's statement: "The smallest bond we gave was for $1. You'd find it interesting if you could trace that back."

What was the man who couldn't be trusted with $1 except under bonding protection? It's just as well we don't know. An investigation might prove disappointing. Probably a case of someone who was trusted

Government Seeks Ruling Of Courts on Collection Of Taxes to Save System

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, April 7.—A question which threatens to revolutionize the tax collecting methods of the country, according to the government, soon may be decided by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Involved is an ancient practice which the federal government, until recently, was always able to enforce when it touched the pockets of its citizens. This policy consisted of requiring the taxpayer to turn into the custody of the United States treasury the tax assessed against him, leaving him, as his only recourse, its payment "under protest," and the initiation of litigation to recover what he contended had been illegally collected. The court of last resort has been called upon to determine whether this time-honored tax-collecting method shall continue to prevail, or whether the taxpayer has the right to withhold payment of the tax assessed until the soundness of the government's demand can be determined, by court procedure if necessary.

No specific taxing statute is under attack, but the issue presented in the controversy is whether any court can restrain the collection of a federal tax.

Many objections have been urged to the government's insistence that the taxes it assesses must be paid, leaving its right to them to be tested later. Aside from the disadvantages which attach to suits against the government, those who follow the government's mandate and paid taxes "under protest," found that successful suits in the court of claims did not always result in the prompt recovery of the money. After a judgment is obtained congress must appropriate before any money can be refunded, and experience has demonstrated that congress cannot be hurried in such matters. With a fair degree of good fortune the successful litigant could reasonably hope that his posterity of the second or third generation might obtain a refund of money illegally collected from him.

When E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Company incorporated in Delaware, its story was issued to those who had been financially interested in the New Jersey corporation of the same name. The government took the position that the stock of the Delaware corporation so issued was taxable income, and the Supreme Court so held in the case of United States vs. Phillips. An attempt had been made to collect from Alfred I. du Pont, one of the stockholders, an income tax of $1,576,300 on the stock of the Delaware corporation which he had received. Payment was delayed by Mr. du Pont by a claim of abatement filed with the commissioner of Internal Revenue. When the Supreme Court decision came in the Phillips case, the commissioner promptly rejected Mr. du Pont's claim, and insisted that the tax be paid forthwith.

Instead of complying and paying the tax under protest, Mr. du Pont went into the United States District Court for Delaware and obtained a preliminary injunction restraining the government from collecting the tax by distraint. The Third Circuit Court of Appeals considered the action of the district court good law, and affirmed the decree. In view of the importance the government attaches to an early decision, the Supreme Court has advanced the case for oral argument April 23. In insisting that no court could legally restrain it in the collection of a federal tax, the government declared that the interests of Mr. du Pont were amply protected and that he had not been deprived of his remedy at law to recover any taxes which were erroneously or illegally assessed and collected.

completely, but who, due to a law or some other technicality, had to be bonded for a nominal sum. It's queer transaction. We pass it by as one of the unsolved mysteries.

The largest bond written by the National Surety last year was for $2,124,535. That's a lot of money to entrust to one person under conditions that make theft a matter of choice. Nothing stood between the bonding company and flight except the bonded person and flight except the bonding company, its detectives, the law and—greatest safeguard of all—the individual's character.

But how many people would you trust with $2,124,535?

People, however, apparently are more honest on the average than is generally realized. The National Surety in its 33 years of doing business has had to deal with over 200,000 defaulters. But these formed only a fraction of the millions whose honesty and integrity it guaranteed.

The absconder gets the publicity, but he's far-and-away in the minority.

BARTHELMESS HELPED TO DIRECT LATEST FEATURE

The ambition that Richard Barthelmess, popular film star, nourishes to become a director, bore unexpected fruit during the filming of "Sonny," his latest First National attraction. In the midst of an expensive set Director Henry King was taken ill with a touch of pneumonia. With the scenery in place and a cast involving an enormous weekly expense engaged, every day lost meant a financial drain upon the company.

In this emergency Barthelmess, who has been associated with Director King for so long a time as to be familiar with the latter's methods, assumed the responsibility of directing the scene himself. The incidents required for that particular set were filmed; after which the company took a rest until the director recovered sufficiently to resume his duties.

Barthelmess wants to be a director some day, but not until he has reached the acme of usefulness in the acting profession. In the meantime he will continue to star in pictures, his latest one, "Sonny," being the current attraction at the McSwain Theatre.

NEW CHANCELLOR HAILED BY EDINBURGH STUDENT

(By the Associated Press)

CAMBRIDGE, England, April 11. College students in Britain probably carry the sport of "ragging" to further extremes than in any other country. The installation of a former prime minister of the kingdom as chancellor of one of its oldest universities might seem to be a ceremony that would command the respect even of undergraduates. But when David Lloyd George was made chancellor of Edinburgh University a few days ago the whole proceeding was a joyous riot, which the faculty of the institution took as a matter of course.

Another former prime minister, Herbert H. Asquith, made a speech here recently, and the students of this ancient seat of learning "framed" a plot to kidnap him on his way. The plot miscarried, but if Mr. Asquith had been ten times a prime minister the students would not have hesitated to drag him off his train.

Apparently the scheme was to kidnap Mr. Asquith on his way from London. He was to have been motored to Ryston and there given a dinner. Referring to this plot in the course of his speech, Mr. Asquith said: "It is only owing to the grace of Providence or the accident of fortune that I am here tonight. There are tales of false brethren who, unknown to and unsuspected by me, appear to have endangered my journey. Through your vigilance and excellent staff work I escaped them, and am able to be here with you now."

PONTOTOC COUNTY HAS TWO CADETS AT NORMAN

NORMAN, April 11.—(Special)—Pontotoc county contributes two cadets to the student branch of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps of the University of Oklahoma according to information given out by Major William R. Gruber, commandant.

The military unit is popular with the students despite the fact that two years of military science is required of all men under the age of 21 who have not served in the military forces of the United States or who are not incapacitated for military duty because of physical disability. Theoretical training under the tutelage of regular army officers is given instead of incessant drill in "squads right and squads left" which formerly composed the major part of the military curriculum. Infantry men are given instruction in topography, in the use of the rifle, machine gun, and one pounder. Artillerymen are taught equitation and trained in the use of such weapons as the 75 mm guns.

Commissions in the reserve army are given those who complete a prescribed two year advanced course. Cadet-officers receive uniforms and commutation of subsistence.

The following men with rank and classification are from Ada: Sergeant D. G. Duncan, sophomore, company E; and Charles A. Smith, sophomore battery A. Bryant Duncan, freshman, battery B, and Hubert Rotenberry, battery C, hail from Stratford.

STILLWATER, April 11.—(Special.)—Oklahoma Aggies won a clean, fast game from East Central State Teachers college on Lewis field here Tuesday, 6 to 1. Hard hitting by the Aggies, accounted for the scoring.

Warren's fourbagger in the fourth sent Sadler and Walker home ahead of him. Dean was on when Sale clouted his homer in the eighth. After smashing a triple, Connor scored on a third-base error by McCoy. Warren's error at the hot corner gave Johnson life at first. Do you hear that? And listen—she had me in a corner and, of course, being my mother, she put on the screws. She made me promise that we'd live in the East half the year. That means Chicago, Cape May, New York—you see, I'm not exactly the lost son any more. Why, Nell, dear, you'll have to learn who Dick Gale really is. But I always want to be the ranger who helped me become, and ride Blanco Sol, and see a little of the desert. Don't let the idea of big cities frighten you. We'll always love the open places best. Now,

"My Heart Is Broken," Sobbed Nell,
"For I Can't Marry You."

Nell, say you'll forget this trouble. I know it'll come all right. Say you'll marry me soon. . . . Why, dearest, you're crying. . . . Nell!"

"My heart is broken," sobbed Nell, "for—I can't marry you!"

The boyish brightness faded out of Gale's face. Here, Belding saw, was the stern reality arrayed against his dreams.

"That devil, Radford Chase—he'll tell my secret," panted Nell. "He swore if you ever came back and married me he'd follow us all over the world to tell it."

Belding saw Gale grow deathly white and suddenly stand stock-still. "Chase threatened you, then?" asked Dick; and the forced naturalness of his voice struck Belding.

"Threatened me?" He made my life a nightmare," replied Nell, in a rush of speech. "He got so half the time, when he was drunk, he didn't want or ask me to be his wife. I was about ready to give up and go mad when you—came home."

She ended in a whisper, looking up wistfully and sadly at him. Belding was a raging fire within, cold without. Gale gathered Nell up into his arms and held her to his breast for a long moment.

"Dear Nell, I'm sure the worst of your trouble is over," he said, gently. "I will not give you up. Now, won't you lie down, try to rest and calm yourself? Don't grieve any more. This thing isn't so bad as you make it. Trust me. I'll shut Mr. Radford Chase's mouth."

As he released her she glanced quickly up at him, then lifted appealing hands.

"Dick, you won't hunt for him—go after him?"

Gale laughed, and the laugh made Belding jump.

"Dick, I cannot keep you back?"

"No," he said.

Then the woman in her burst through instinctive fear, and with her eyes blazing black in her white face she lifted parted quivering lips and kissed him.

Gale left the patio, and Belding followed closely at his heels. They went through the sitting-room. Outside upon the porch sat the rangers, Mr. Gale, and Thorne. Dick went into his room without speaking.

"Shore somethin's comin' off," said Ladd, sharply; and he sat up with his keen eyes narrowing.

Belding spoke a few words; and, remembering an impression he had wished to make upon Mr. Gale, he made them strong.

"Better stop that boy," he concluded, looking at Mr. Gale. "He'll do some mischief. He's wilder'n a—"

Just then Dick came out of his door. "Richard, where are you going?" asked his father.

"I'm going to beat a dog."

Then Dick strode off the porch.

"Hold on!" Ladd's voice would have stopped almost any man. "Dick, you wasn't agoin' without me?"

"Yes, I was. But I'm thoughtless just now, Laddy."

"Shore you was. Wait a minute, Dick. I'm a sick man, but at that nobody can pull any stunts round here without me."

He hobnobbed along the porch and went into his room. Jim Lash knocked the ashes out of his pipe, and humming his dance tune, he followed

Ladd. In a moment the rangers appeared, and both were packing guns. "Where will we find these Chases?" asked Dick of Belding.

"They've got a place down the road adjoining the inn. They call it their club. At this hour Radford will be there sure. I don't know about the old man. But his office is now just across the way."

They passed several houses, turned a corner into the main street, and stopped at a wide, low adobe structure. The place was a hall, and needed only a bar to make it a saloon. A large table near a window was surrounded by a noisy, smoking, drinking circle of card-players.

"Point out this Radford Chase to me," said Gale.

"There! The big fellow with the red face. His eyes stick out a little. See? He's dropped his cards and his face isn't red any more."

Dick strode across the room. His heavy boot shot up, and with a crash the table split, and glasses, cards, chips flew everywhere. As they rattled down and the chairs of the dumfounded players began to slide Dick called out: "My name is Gale. I'm looking for Mr. Radford Chase."

A tall, heavy-shouldered fellow rose, boldly enough, even swaggering and glowered at Gale.

"I'm Radford Chase," he said. His voice betrayed the boldness of his action.

It was over in a few moments. The tables and chairs were tumbled into a heap; a pool table had been shoved aside; a lamp lay shattered, with oil running dark upon the floor. Ladd leaned against a post with a smoking gun in his hand. A Mexican crouched close to the wall moaning over a broken arm. In the far corner upheld by comrades another wounded Mexican cried out in pain. These two had attempted to draw weapons upon Gale, and Ladd had crippled them.

In the center of the room lay Radford Chase, a limp, torn, hulking, bloody figure. He was not seriously injured. But he was helpless, a miserable beaten wretch, who knew his condition and felt the eyes upon him. He sobbed and moaned and howled. But no one offered to help him to his feet.

Backed against the door of the hall stood Ben Chase, for once stripped of all authority and confidence and courage. Dick Gale confronted him. He shook a huge gloved fist in Chase's face.

"Your gray hairs save you this time. But keep out of my way! And when that son of yours comes to, tell him every time I meet him I'll add some more to what he got today!"

CHAPTER XIX

The Secret of Forlorn River.

In the early morning Gale, seeking solitude where he could brood over his trouble, wandered alone. It was not easy for him to elude the Yaqui, and just at the moment when he had cast himself down in a secluded shady corner the Indian appeared, noiseless, shadowy, mysterious as always.

The Indian had been told of the losses sustained by Belding and his rangers.

"Go—me!" and Yaqui, with an impressive gesture toward the lofty lilac-colored steps of No Name mountains. He seemed the same as usual, but a glance on Gale's part, a moment's attention, made him conscious of the old strange force in the Yaqui.

"Why does my brother want me to climb the nameless mountains with him?" asked Gale.

"Lluvia d'oro," replied Yaqui, and he made motions that Gale found difficult of interpretation.

"Shower of Gold," translated Gale. That was the Yaqui's name for Nell. What did he mean by using it in connection with a climb into the mountains? Were his motions intended to convey an idea of a shower of golden blossoms from that rare and beautiful tree, or a golden rain? Gale's listlessness vanished in a flash of thought. The Yaqui meant gold! Gold! He meant he could retrieve the fallen fortunes of the white brother who had saved his life that evil day at the Papago well. Gale thrilled as he gazed piercingly into the wonderful eyes of this Indian. Would Yaqui never consider his debt paid?

"Go—me?" repeated the Indian, pointing with the singular directness that always made this action remarkable in him.

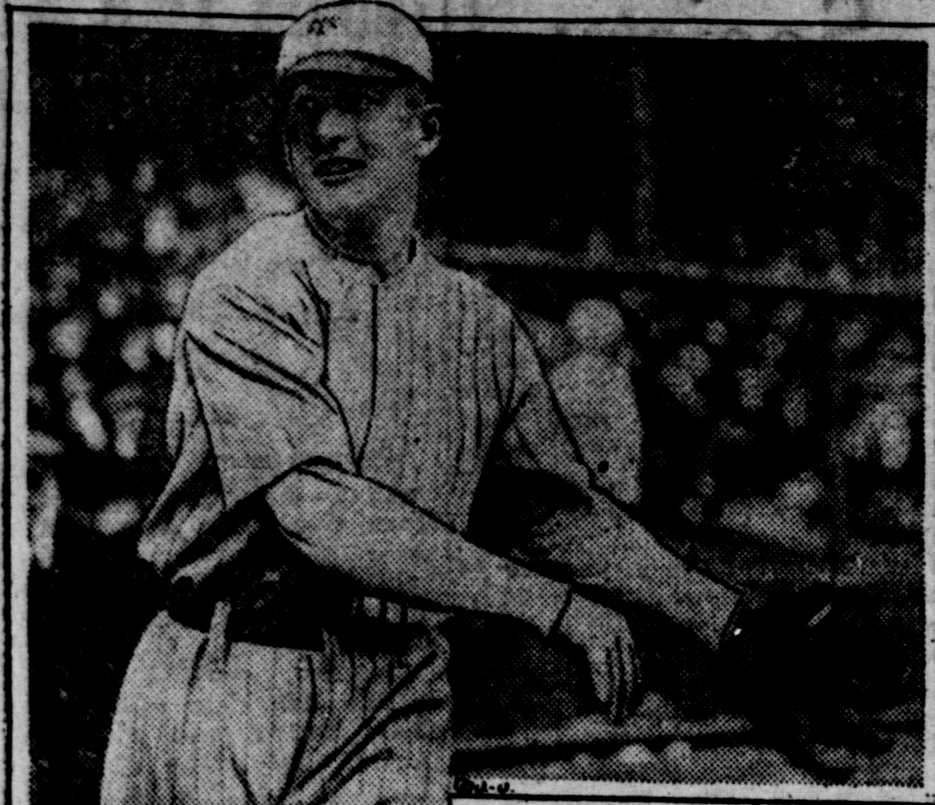

"Yes, Yaqui."

Gale ran to his room, put on hobnailed boots, filled a canteen and hurried back to the corral. Yaqui awaited him. The Indian carried a coiled lasso and a short stout stick. Without a word he led the way down the lane, turned up the river toward the mountains. None of Belding's household saw their departure.

What had once been only a narrow mesquite-bordered trail was now a well-trodden road. A deep irrigation ditch, full of flowing muddy water, ran parallel with the road. Gale had been curious about the operations of the Chases, but a bitterness he could not help had kept him from going out to see the work. He was not surprised to find that the engineers who had constructed the ditches and dam had anticipated him in every particular. The dammed-up gulch made a magnificent reservoir, and Gale could not look upon the long narrow lake without a feeling of gladness. The dreaded anaco of the Mexicans might come again and would come, but never to the inhabitants of Forlorn River. That stone-walled, stone-floored gulch would never leak, and already it contained water enough to irrigate the whole of Ada valley for two dry seasons.

Yaqui led swiftly along the lake to the upper end, where the stream roared down over unscalable walls. This point was the farthest Gale had ever penetrated into the rough foothills, and he had Belding's word for it that no white man had ever climbed No Name mountains from the west.

BILL DIDN'T COST ANY $75,000 BUT HE'LL SHARE JOB WITH O'CONNELL

Bill Cunningham in action.

Over the winter months columns of stuff were written about Jimmy O'Connell, the outfielding and first basing star of the Pacific Coast league for whom the Giants had paid $75,000 and who had been given a year's training on the coast under McGraw's orders after his purchase. When the spring training season began McGraw figured on playing him in center field. Now, however, it is generally believed that O'Connell will war the bench when southpaw face the Giants and the unsung William Cunningham will replace him. O'Connell's hitting against lefties isn't very good. Cunningham can hit them and he can field with any of the youngsters.

The Indian left the gulch and clambered up over a jumble of weathered slides and traced a slow course along the base of the giant wall. He looked up and seemed to select a point for ascent. It was the last place in that mountain side where Gale would have thought climbing possible. Before him the wall rose, leaning over him, shutting out the light, a dark mighty mountain mass. Immense cracks and crevices and caves roughened the bulging sides of dark rock.

Yaqui tied one end of his lasso to the short, stout stick and, carefully disentangling the coils, he whirled the stick round and round and threw it almost over the first rim of the shelf, perhaps thirty feet up. The stick did not lodge. Yaqui tried again. This time it caught in a crack. He pulled hard. Then, holding to the lasso, he walked up the steep slant, hand over hand on the rope. When he reached the shelf he motioned for Gale to follow. Gale found that method of scaling a wall both quick and easy. Yaqui pulled up the lasso, and threw the stick aloft into another crack. He climbed to another shelf, and Gale followed him. The third effort brought them to a more rugged bench a hundred feet above the slides. The Yaqui worked round to the left and turned into a dark fissure. Gale kept close at his heels. They came out presently into lighter space, yet one that restricted any extended view. Broken sections of cliff were on all sides.

Here the ascent became toil. Gale could distance Yaqui going downhill; on the climb, however, he was hard put to it to keep the Indian in sight. It was not a question of strength or lightness of foot. These Gale had beyond the share of most men. It was a matter of lung power, and the Yaqui's life had been spent scaling the desert heights. Moreover, the climbing was infinitely slow, tedious, dangerous.

BETHLEHEM STEEL CORP. TO INCREASE WAGE SCALE

NEW YORK April 10.—President Eugene Grace of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation announced that an increase in wages would be put into effect April 16. While the amount of the increase will not be made public until the details are developed through the employee's representative system, it is expected that it will approximate the 11 per cent increase announced yesterday by the United States Steel Corporation.

The United States requires 600,000,000 pounds of wool each year.

Midget Nation Stands Out Alone in Fight as Haughty Neighbor Watches Struggle

(By the Associated Press)
SOFIA, Bulgaria, April 11.—Bulgaria is the loneliest country in the world. Surrounded by nations she fought against in the great war, bereft through Bolshevism of the help and guidance of her natural protector, Russia, she is without an ally in a continent of ententes, pacts and alliances. She has been striving to win back the friendship of her next-door neighbors, Jugo Slavia and Roumania, but they have proved lukewarm to her advances. Soviet Russia has been only too eager to offer the little Balkan state its hand of friendship and support, but Bulgaria's rules know that to accept it would mean a further estrangement from the allies.

For more than three years the country has been directed by Alexander Stambulisky, the peasant, who was released from a convict prison in 1918 to quell an army mutiny and overthrow the Czar Ferdinand. He is Bulgaria's strong man, not only by virtue of his own rugged powerful personality, but because he leads the Agrarian Party, which swamps all others in parliament. Stambulisky told King Ferdinand in 1918 that if he thrust Bulgaria into war with the allies, he would lose his head. The king told Stambulisky that he would lose his own head and threw him into jail.

Bulgaria is a nation of peasants. More than four-fifths of the country's five millions work on the land. The peasants have little sympathy with Bolshevism. They are determined to permit no reactionary movements. Of the forces of reaction, there are communists in Sofia and other towns, and there are paid Soviet emissaries all over the land. There still are discontented Bulgars who look upon Ferdinand as their rightful king. In the event of a coup by any of these forces, the people have threatened to set up a dictatorship of the peasants.

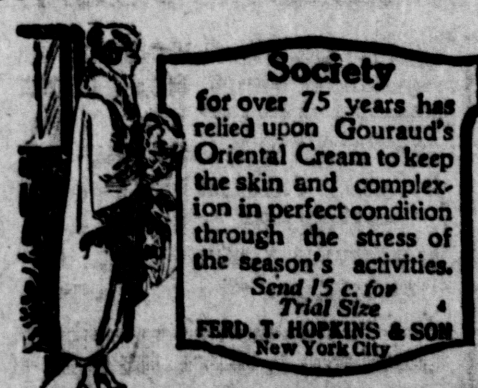

Premier Stambulisky stands for a constitutional monarchy, and the present king, Boris, acts in all ways as a constitutional monarch, in strong contrast with the autocracy of his father, Ferdinand. Boris is the youngest king in Europe, being only 28. Of medium height, dark complexion, intellectual features and an alert mind, he resembles an American college student. He is an accomplished linguist speaking Bulgarian, English, French, Italian, German, Spanish and Russian. He resembles in temperament his Bourbon mother rather than his German father.

Boris enjoys great popularity among his peasants. After spending the morning at his desk, he motors out to the country nearly every afternoon and spends some time among them. Informal and casual talks with them are his great hobby. He listens patiently to their complaints and suggestions, and is quick to redress every grievance.

The youthful monarch's great pastime is railroad engineering. In his summer palace at Vranja, near Sofia, is a Decauville narrow-gauge railroad built largely by himself. He is a skilled engine driver, and has taken a scientific course in mechanics and engineering. His proud possession is a miniature locomotive presented to him as a youth by Charles R. Crane of Chicago. The locomotive is a model of those used on all the big American railroad systems, and is easily the most striking exhibit in the king's big collection of souvenirs and trophies.

This region soon after the close of the war. They represented more than 100 regiments, and most of them had been wounded in action. New York contributed 41, Pennsylvania 39, Ohio 12, Wisconsin five, Massachusetts and Vermont three each, Illinois and Connecticut two each, and Indiana, Kansas, Missouri and Michigan one each. They played an important part in the oil development of the region and to this day the remaining members are numbered among the most respected residents of the community.

The oldest national park is the Hot Springs reservation, in Arkansas.

FOOD AND LIGHT NEED OF BRITISH

Sunlight and Milk Needs for Ills of Great Britain.

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON—Sunlight and milk, says a medical writer in the Times, constitute the greatest panacea for the ills of the human race of the present day. He declares that the next important task of public health authorities is to argue and apply a public opinion and an effective demand for the adequate restoration of sunlight and milk to the urban population of the world.

"These two mighty agents of nutrition," he says, "are closely related and complementary. Our national supply of both, as compared to the United States, for instance, is deplorable, quantitatively and qualitatively. In some degree this may be due to inevitable geographical necessity; but in a large degree it is due to our own negligence and ignorance."

We must drink more milk, enjoins this writer. He says the people of England are impossibly handicapped, industrially and otherwise, by the fact that the per capita consumption of milk is one-third that in the United States. "Monstrous machinery exists," he says, "to persuade the public to drink beer, for which no authoritative physiologist has a good word."

The medical expert then says no one will deny the potency of sunlight as an agent in curing diseases and he makes a plea to the British authorities to stamp out what he calls "the disease of darkness," and restore England's black cities and blighted citizens to their place in the sun.

"We are not only badly housed with infamous slums," he observes, "but our national source of power is soft coal, our barbaric combustion of which renders our cities the darkest on earth. Thanks to our urbanization, our industrialization, and our neglect of agriculture, we are very poorly supplied with those fresh and natural foods which abound in vitamins. It is time we learned the value of milk and sunlight. They are more needed by us than any nation on earth."

The 5,000 varieties of dahlia now on the market have developed from the wild single dahlia introduced from Mexico a little more than 100 years ago.

practically impossible for eczema to exist. We know that as blood-cells increase in number, blood impurities vanish! We also know that night follows day. Both are facts! But have you, eczema sufferers, ever actually taken advantage of this wonderful fact? Thousands just like you have never thought about it. Skin eruptions, eczema with all its fiery, skin-digesting torture and its soul-tearing, un-reachable itching, pimples, blackheads and boils, they all pack up and go, when the tide of blood-cells begins to roll in! Blood-cells are the fighting giants of nature! S. S. S. builds them by the million! It has been doing it since 1828! S. S. S. is one of the greatest blood-cell builders, blood-cleansers and body builders known to us mortals! When you put these facts together—then, to continue to have eczema and skin eruptions looks more like a sin than a disease. S. S. S. contains only vegetable medicinal ingredients. Because S. S. S. does build red-blood-cells, it routs eczema, builds firm flesh, fills out hollow cheeks, beautifies the complexion, builds you up when you are run-down. S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

DE VALERA REPORTED TAKEN BY FREE STATE TROOPS

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON, April 11.—Eamonn de Valera, leader of the Irish republicans, has been captured, according to a Central News dispatch this morning.

RENEWED TESTIMONY

No one in Ada who suffers backache, headaches or distressing urinary ills can afford to ignore this Ada man's twice-told story. It is confirmed testimony that no Ada resident can doubt.

F. M. Jones, 315 N. 13th St., says: "Probably, from the drinking water here, my kidneys became badly disordered. My back ached steadily and the kidney secretions were disordered. When I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills, I began using them and they surely helped me a lot. When I have used them since I have always had the desired relief."

The above statement was given on February 27, 1917 and on May 2, 1921. Mr. Jones added: "I have the same good word for Doan's Kidney Pills as when I formerly recommended them. I take Doan's when ever I have occasion to use a kidney medicine."

SWEDENS YEARN TO COME TO AMERICA TO LIVE

(By the Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM, April 10.—"America fever" again has broken out in various parts of Sweden, according to statistical reports. This term is applied by the opponents of emigration to the yearnings of young men and women to seek their fortunes in the United States.

More than one thousand persons left Sweden for America during January and February of this year as against fewer than three hundred for the same period last year.

Virtually all of these emigrants are well supplied with funds to cover their traveling expenses, and most of them have relatives who will help them out when they arrive.

Sweden's quota under the United States immigration law is about 20,000 per year.

Oklahoma Crop Notes.
OKLAHOMA CITY, April 10, 1923.—Oklahoma's wheat crop this year shows a much better condition at this time than in 1922, according to a special report released by J. A. Whitehurst, president of the State Board of Agriculture. An extensive survey made recently points to a growing condition of 80 per cent of normal, as compared with 64 per cent on April 1st last year and 89 per cent in 1921.

While it is one month too early for the State and Federal governments co-operating to estimate officially the probable production by use of the condition figure, the following statement may prove interesting to the trade and general public. Providing the condition remains the same on May 1st as on April 1st, the figure would forecast a probable production of 37,000,000 bushels. If the condition varies one point either way, of course the above estimate would be changed materially.

While moisture conditions were very inadequate during the earlier part of the season, timely rains fell at intervals during what might be called the critical period and brought the stand practically out of danger, except in the Panhandle and extreme Southwest. In these two localities not much, if any, precipitation has been reported and the larger part of the acreage will probably be planted to later crops. Were it not for three influential factors affecting the crop's progress, the condition would most probably even exceed the condition of 1922. Drouth was of course the most important deteriorating factor; high winds together with heavy sandstorms in the West and Northwest caused much damage; and due to the scarcity of feed, farmers were pasturing their wheat really too long in the opinion of various agriculturists.

A survey of the green bug situation made last week shows that the insects are prevalent in a number of localities, but contrary to numerous reports little, if any, damage has been done. All reports indicate that where the green bug is present, they are confining themselves to small areas and show no tendency to migrate over a large portion of the field. Nicotine-dust demonstrations have been held in communities where green bugs were present with satisfactory results being obtained when the weather permitted.

It was in the North-Central district where reports stated that wheat was being pastured too closely, but even in the face of this the district showed the highest condition figure with the Central section ranking close. Following is the condition by districts, as of April 1st.

Northwest, 76 per cent; West-Central, 79 per cent; Southwest, 77 per cent; Central, 84 per cent; South-Central, 79 per cent; North-East, 80 per cent; East-Central, 75 per cent.

CITIZENSHIP MAY BE LEGAL FIGHT

Right of Official to Enter Diplomatic Service of Other Country Tested.

PARIS, March 10.—How the chief magistrate of a republic might lose his citizenship is a question likely to be established in a case here that promises to become celebrated. Mexican officials, it has just been learned, have questioned the right of Francisco De La Barra, former provisional president of Mexico, to call himself a citizen of that country.

A high official of the Mexican have made a declaration to that effect upon the receipt recently of erroneous advice that Senor De La Barra had just landed in New York, where, according to the Mexican newspaper report, he was given an enthusiastic welcome by Mexican friends and political partisans.

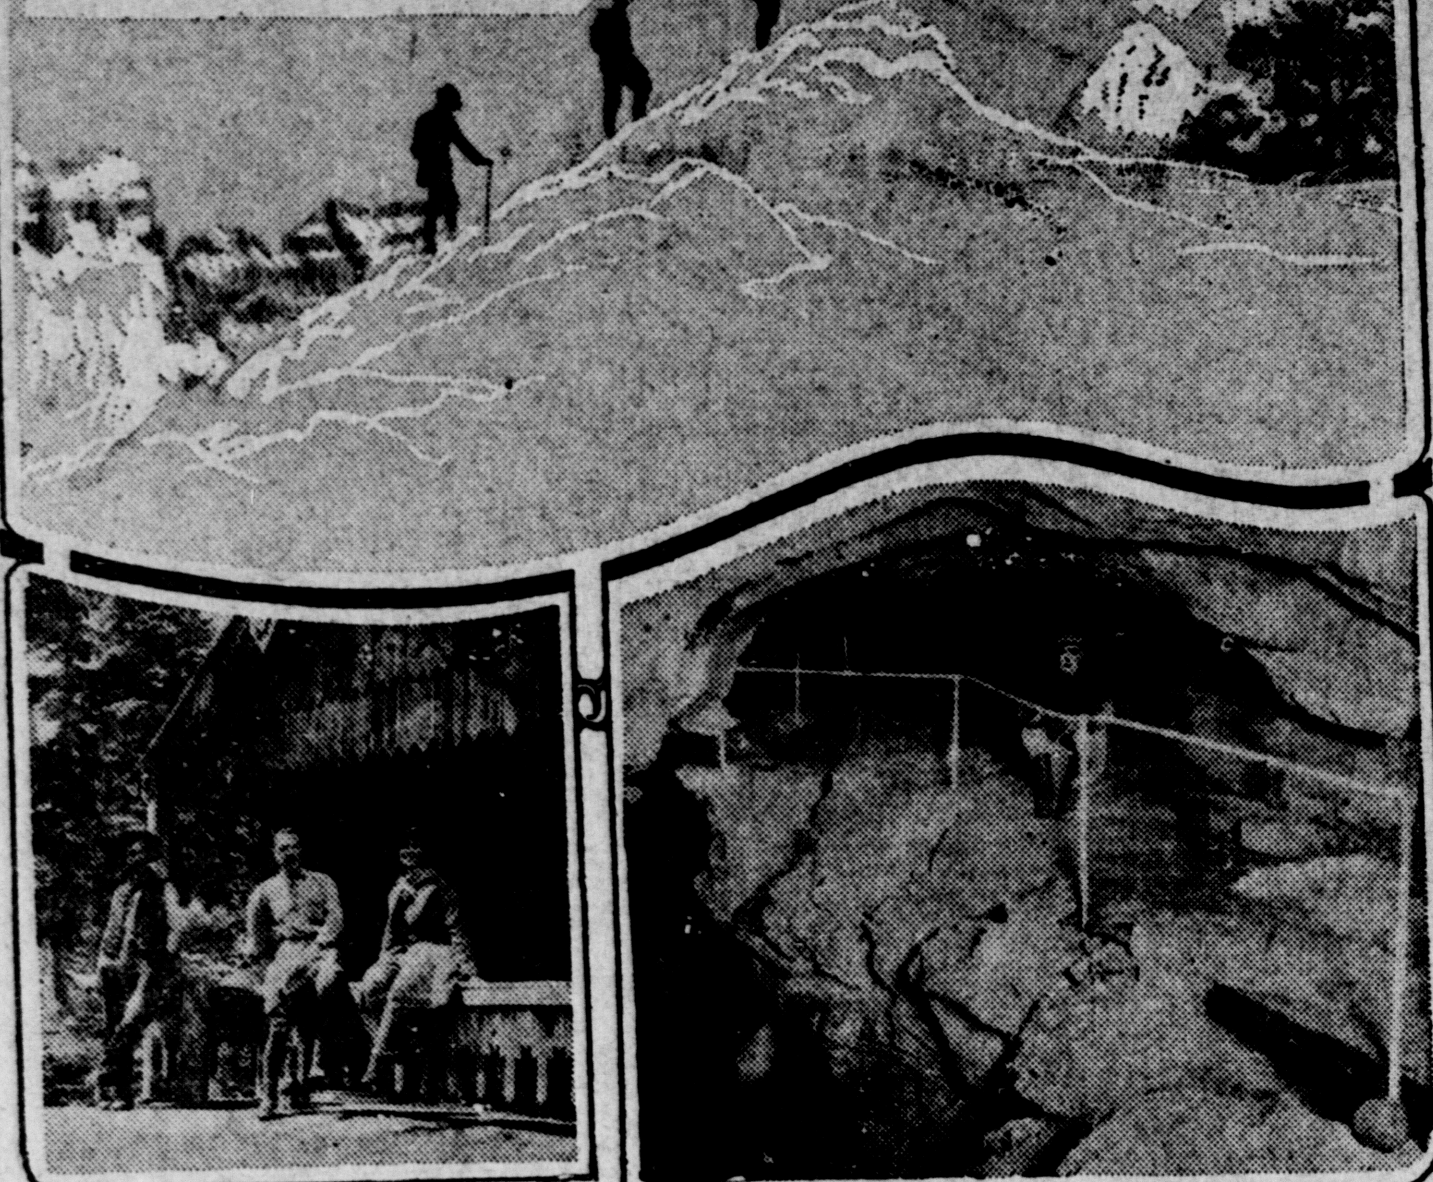

The former president, when asked about it replied: "I may say, after the fashion of Mark Twain, that the news is 'greatly exaggerated.' It is many years since I landed in New York and I am sorry to say I do not see before me any indication of the date when I may again have that pleasure. I am too busy here."

Senor de la Barra was much pained at the thought that any of his fellow citizens should consider excluding him from the republic over which he presided. The grounds for the official declaration of his ex-communication are said to be contained in a provision of the Mexican constitution that citizens may be declared to have lost their nationality if they enter the service of a foreign country for any other than scientific or humanitarian objects.

Senor de la Barra has been acting as the president of several boards of arbitration called upon to settle questions growing out of the war. In this capacity, it is contended here, he is not in the service of any nation, but is acting as an entirely independent arbitrator chosen by all the different nations represented on the boards. His work is in a sense also humanitarian since the bodies over which he presides are doing effective work in settling those troubles left hanging over Europe by the great conflict.

DEUTSCHMANN'S HAND-MADE CABIN AT NAKIMU CAVES

DEEP DOWN IN NAKIMU WHERE THE GRUMBLES BEGIN

The average reader who follows daily the record of Egyptian excavations, is fired with a desire to visit those subterranean treasure rooms, a desire that few may realize.

But another recent under-ground discovery is within reach of a majority of summer tourists. It is a new cavern beyond those heretofore explored and visited in the Selkirk Range of the Canadian Pacific Rockies in British Columbia, which are known as the Nakimu Caves.

The discovery of this natural wonder was the outcome of a life of prospecting and early western romance. Charles Deutschmann, an American who roamed the Rockies from Colorado to the Far North, heard from the Indians of a spirit-haunted valley which they shunned. American-like, Deutschmann decided that this was just the sort of thing to be looked into. Whatever phenomenon existed, must have a cause. He found that shifting winds produced the human-like whispers that filled the narrow canyon; that the hole from which issued the supposed angry mutterings of Manitou, was the entrance to a series of caves of indescribable beauty.

For years he spent his summers in a picturesque cabin that he built near the cave entrance, and pried ever deeper and deeper into the underground chambers, finding a Stygian stream and erecting bridges and ladders for the convenience of tourists who visited this object of interest in increasing numbers year by year.

The fact that a newly-found chamber about 435 feet long, from 12 to 16 feet wide and 100 feet high, is now accessible, will, no doubt, attract larger numbers of visitors than ever before.

Nakimu Caves are but seven miles by trail along Cougar Creek from Glacier, B. C., the rallying point for Alpinists as the surrounding country is covered with glacier-draped peaks that offer excellent mountain climbing, requiring various degrees of skill. A delightful contrast is afforded by descending into the earth and viewing the various stalactites and encrustations, after having ascended snowy trails and white peaks.

France Makes Stride in Advancement of Interest In Following for Radio

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS.—While the United States has been carrying on an intensive campaign in wireless broadcasting and the use of radio by amateurs, France has been hard at work developing its commercial wireless business through private enterprise.

Today France has the largest, most efficient and most powerful wireless equipment in Europe. Unlike England, France took the opportunity during the war of developing this new means of communication.

Today the French government have four high-powered stations. Most Americans are familiar with the great Eiffel Tower which rears its steel framework into the Paris skyline like a giant finger and snatches radio messages from around the world. It is in continuous contact with Arlington, near Washington, and all the other great American stations. Next in importance comes the station at Nantes, which is allocated to the French navy; the station at Lyons, which was erected during the war and is used by the post office for communications to America, Africa, Europe and the French colonies; and the great Lafayette station, near Bordeaux, which was built by the American navy and later acquired by the French government. The Lafayette tower sends daily communications to Madagascar, Martinique and Saigon. The government service consists of news, propaganda and official communications.

The chief wireless installation in France is now that of Ste. Assise and consists of two stations, one for European traffic and one for world communication. It was necessary to build this powerful station because of the inadequacy of the submarine cables and telegraph lines, and the lack of capacity of the other wireless stations for continuous long distance communication. The Ste. Assise station undertakes rapid and intensive service to North and South America and with the Far East and Indo-China.

To show the progress radio is making in this country it may be mentioned that the total number of words transmitted from France to the United States increased from 353,734 in November, 1922, to 436,979 in January, 1923. The number of daily messages sent by radio in January was more than the combined number sent out from France by the two chief submarine cable companies.

Commercial radio is operated by the Company Radio-France, a subsidiary of the French Wireless Company. The parent company, the "Compagnie Generale de Telegraphie Sans Fil," has a concession for 30 years from the French government granted in October, 1920, but dating from Jan. 1, 1924. The public interests and state requirements in time of war are safeguarded. The parent company is in alliance with the Marconi Company, the American Radio Corporation, the German Telefunken Company, and the Mitsui Bussan Kaisha of Japan. It is associated with companies in Belgium, Italy, Poland, Roumania, Switzerland, land, Syria, South America and other countries.

France has long-distance two-way stations at Buenos Aires, Beirut, and Saigon, and a longdistance transmitting station is being built in Madagascar. It will thus be seen that the French radio system covers the world, and a large radio manufacturing industry has been built up in France by private enterprise which has free scope for development abroad. The state does not aspire to make a profit on its radio service, which is, indeed, heavily subsidized.

The giant Ste. Assise station, which is 30 miles from Paris, is designed to transmit 200 words a minute. For transmission and reception the station is capable of a total of 100,000 words an hour, compared with an average of 36,000 words a day by the best submarine cable to America. The rates charged are approximately a third less than the cable tolls.

INSANE PRISONERS MAKE ESCAPE AT MATTEAWAN

(By the Associated Press)

Matteawan, N. Y., April 11.—Four prisoners at the Matteawan state hospital for insane criminals made their escape today. They overpowered the night watchman, bound and gagged him, robbed him of his keys, then overpowered a guard and took the keys to the garage from which they stole an automobile belonging to the superintendent and drove north carrying the guard with them as far as Poughkeepsie, 16 miles from here, where they dropped him.

Ballentyne Murder Claims Brownings as Clue to Action

SALT LAKE CITY, April 11.—Information charging murder in the first degree was expected to be filed here today against one or more persons in connection with the slaying of Benjamin F. Ballentyne, former bank teller, at his home in a fashionable part of the city Monday, it was said here last night.

County Attorney Arthur E. Morton and several other officers investigating the killing declined to say definitely what disposition would be made of Mariner A. Browning and John Browning, Jr., his cousin, held in connection with Ballentyne's death. Both men, who are widely known throughout the state, are under arrest in the city jail, detained for "investigation."

They were arrested at the Ballentyne home after the shooting and Mariner, the police say, declared, confessed that he had shot Ballentyne in self defense.

Owsley Favoring Change in Affairs in Veterans Bureau

(By the Associated Press)

NEW ORLEANS, April 11.—There must be a change in the methods of the Veterans' Bureau, Alvin Owsley, national commander of the American Legion declared in his address before the annual reunion of the United Confederate Veterans, and insisting on the need of an immediate investigation of that department.

Mr. Owsley extended greetings on behalf of the Legion. He paid a glowing tribute to the warriors of the South and explained at length the spirit actuating the Legion what it hopes to accomplish, and launched a bitter attack upon what he termed the "political inefficiency of the bureau."

STRENGTH AND SAFETY IN THE BODY OF STEEL

If you could see the main body structure of Dodge Brothers Business Coupe before the enamel is baked on, and before the interior is furnished, you would be profoundly impressed by its strength.

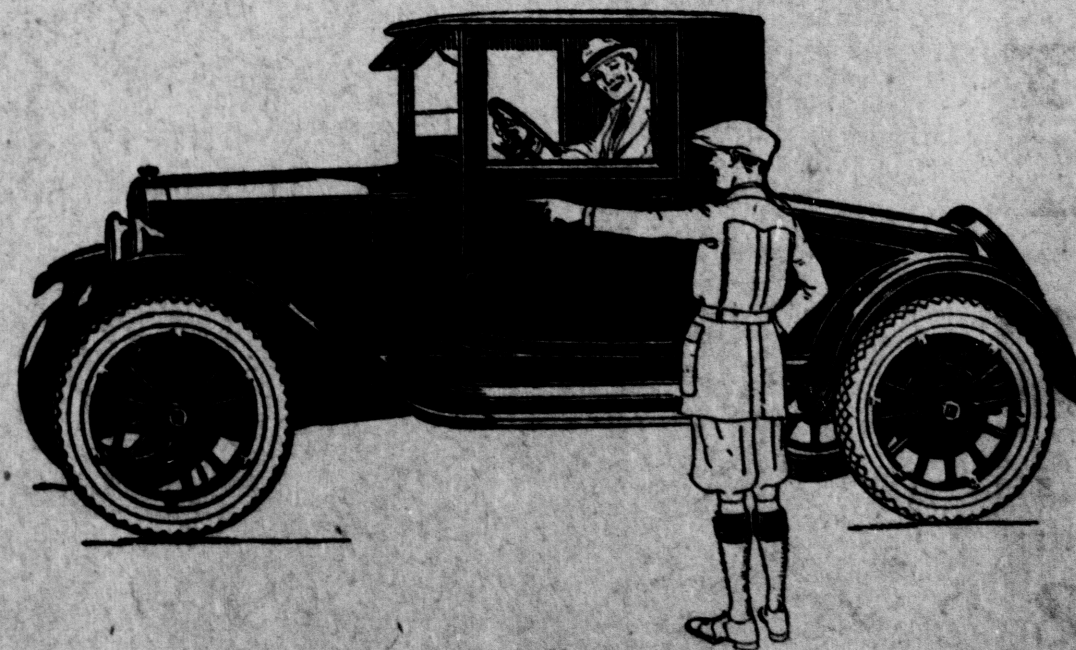

You would see that every panel, every pillar, and every rib is steel—that even the door sills and window mouldings are steel.

You would see that all of these parts and sections are electrically welded together into one staunch steel body, with no bolts or rivets to work loose, nothing to rattle or squeak or warp.

And you would realize that, like the all-steel Pullman coach, this unique construction—originated by Dodge Brothers for this car—represents the last word in protection to passengers—the ultimate achievement in closed car sturdiness.
